Introduction

Purpose

The Kansas Early Learning Standards (KELS) is a document that provides information and guidance to early childhood providers and teachers, including early primary grade teachers, on the developmental continuum of learning for children from birth through kindergarten. The KELS provide information regarding what young children should know and be able to do as a result of engagement with caring knowledgeable adults, evidence-based curriculum, and developmentally appropriate activities. It is a dynamic resource that providers and teachers can use as they plan activities, choose and implement curriculum, and engage in conversations with young children and their families around early learning. It is important to remember that standards are not to be used as an assessment tool, but rather as a cornerstone to support adults in making appropriate instructional decisions that will benefit our youngest learners.

Adults¹ are responsible for creating an environment that promotes early learning opportunities for the young children for whom they care and educate. Children learn through play and active, hands-on learning. Caregivers must use their knowledge to create experiences that are child-focused and standards-based while also meeting the needs of individual children. For infants and toddlers in particular, these standards must be linked to programs or adult decisions based upon knowledge of child development and individual learning needs, not “required” child behaviors or skills.

For each child to learn, ALL adults must intentionally provide positive, inclusive and nurturing environments that promote learning. The goal of the Kansas Early Learning Document is to provide the resources and support needed to help make this happen.

Background

This is the fourth revision of the Kansas Early Learning Standards. The Kansas State Board of Education and the Kansas Children’s Cabinet and Trust Fund both adopted these standards in February 2024. The first document was completed in 2006 with a second revision done in 2009 and a third revision in 2013. As with previous revisions, the work focused on updating the standards based upon new and current knowledge and research. Additionally, specific focus was placed on developmentally appropriate practices, ease of use and accessibility, as well as the incorporation of practices to ensure commitment to responsive and respectful early learning environments and supporting children from diverse backgrounds. This document is another result of the extensive collaboration that is a part of the Kansas early childhood education community. The early childhood community worked collaboratively and intensively to develop a high-quality and useful document that will be helpful to all early childhood care and education professionals and supportive to the work of the K-3 teaching community.

Guidance from multiple state, local and national sources was sought during the review process updating the Kansas Early Learning Standards. National, state and local resources were used to develop a document that is firmly grounded in research, evidence and developmentally appropriate educational practices.

¹ The term adult includes caregivers, teachers, child care providers and education professionals.

Utilizing the Kansas Early Learning Standards should adhere to the following design parameters:

The Kansas Early Learning Standards are designed to:

- Recognize the importance of the early years as learning years.
- Serve as a guide for appropriate curriculum development/selection.
- Serve as a guide for creating quality learning environments and opportunities.

The Kansas Early Learning Standards are NOT Designed to:

- Serve as a curriculum in an early childhood program or other setting.
- Exclude children from a program, school or activity.
- Serve as an assessment for children, families or programs.

The Purpose of the Kansas Early Learning Standards

The Kansas Early Learning Standards are meant to be a multipurpose tool that can supplement the development of quality early learning environments. As such, the KELS were formed with these goals in mind:

1. To create a continuum that links early development to school readiness and later learning in school and life.
2. To provide a clear overview of milestones in a young child's development, and how experiencing quality early learning opportunities can facilitate this development.
3. To provide guidance for early learning professionals that enhance and support their abilities to create experiences and environments that promote early learning opportunities and support families.
4. To show that during the early years, children acquire skills, knowledge and abilities in all developmental areas (e.g., social-emotional, physical, early literacy, mathematics, music), which are critical for future learning.

Guiding Principles for this Document

(From the 2012 School Readiness Framework)

1. From birth, children are learning. Parents, families and caregivers are children's first teachers.
2. Learning is a lifelong activity, and every environment is a learning environment.
3. A child's success in school and life is everyone's responsibility. Communities, educational environments, families and children should be ready to support success.
4. School readiness involves the whole child in the context of the family and the community. This includes the child's health and development in the following areas: physical, social, emotional, cognitive and general knowledge, communication and literacy.
5. Integrated services are available to children, appropriate to the age, abilities, language, and culture of each child.
6. Schools are ready to support the success of each child, recognizing their wide range of cultural and linguistic backgrounds, learning experiences, and differences in abilities.
7. A strong, direct connection exists in the early years between the quality of children's health and experiences and their later success in school and in life. School readiness in Kansas depends on involvement from public policy, funding and system supports.

The Kansas Multi-Tiered System of Supports (MTSS) facilitates the proper implementation of Kansas Early Learning Standards through evidenced-based instruction and behavioral practices. Such supports are provided in response to the specific instructional and behavioral needs of children and are based on the ongoing and frequent collection of universal screening and progress monitoring data.

The School Readiness Framework: A Vision for Kansas

Kansans are dedicated to promoting the success of each child. An essential building block for future academic success is school readiness. Early childhood experiences—from birth to kindergarten entry—that ensure health and physical well-being and the development of cognitive, communication and social-emotional skills are necessary for school success, which has a direct influence on a child’s future.

School readiness occurs within a broad context that includes four major components: 1) Community, 2) Educational Environment, 3) Family and 4) the individual Child. These four components take into account how support comes from multiple facets of a child’s life. Policy, funding and robust systems of support factor into an effective foundation for school readiness. The relationship among these parts in achieving school readiness is shown below in the Kansas School Readiness Framework graphic.

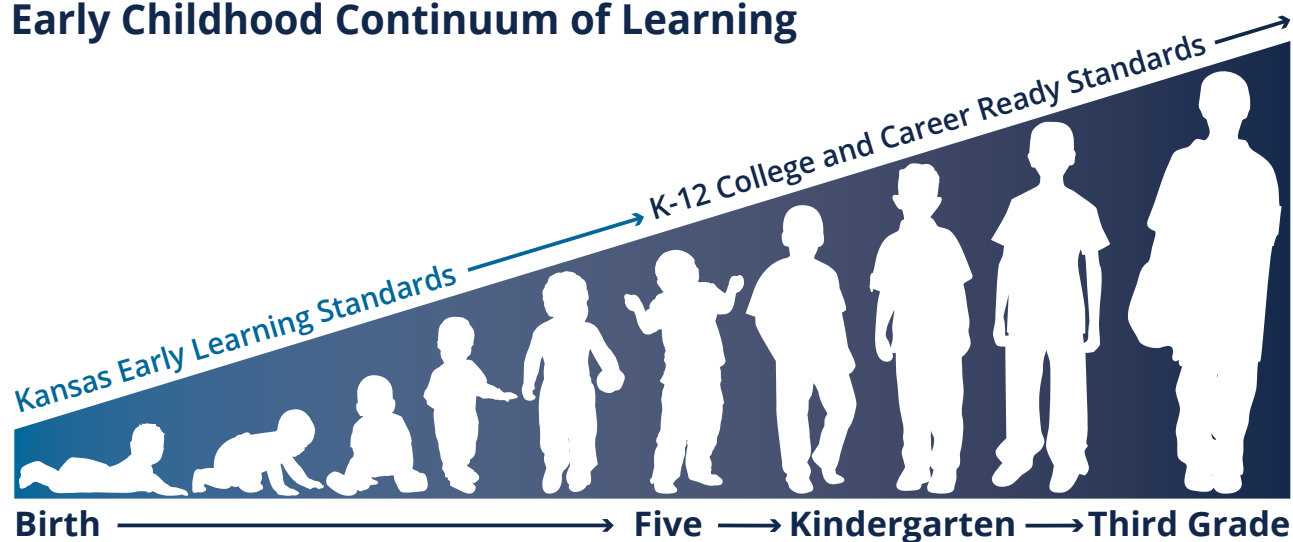

Making the Connection

The Kansas Early Learning Standards are structured around domains of learning inclusive of a whole-child perspective. The connection between the foundational concepts and skills described in the Kansas Early Learning Standards, the School Readiness Framework, and the kindergarten through third grade College and Career Ready standards (multiple content areas) is shown below.

Kansas Early Learning Standards	School Readiness Framework: Indicators and Data Elements	Kindergarten through Third Grade: Content Standards
The Kansas Early Learning Standards provide a set of conceptual knowledge and skills that, when taught intentionally and appropriately in a high-quality early learning setting, can promote school readiness and school success.	Indicators and data elements from the School Readiness Framework, Child Component, are based upon the Kansas Early Learning Standards and provide a way to describe the conceptual knowledge and skills that support success in kindergarten and later school years.	K-3 College and Career Standards are aligned with and supported by the foundational (early learning) concepts and skills and the school readiness Indicators and data elements.

Early Childhood Continuum of Learning

The Kindergarten Transition

The transition to kindergarten can be a difficult event for parents and children. Knowing what kindergarten teachers hope for and expect from the children entering their classroom will help parents and early learning professionals alike to prepare the children in their care for success in kindergarten, school and later life. The Kansas Early Learning Standards in the 2023 revision includes, where possible, the aligned kindergarten grade standards, clearly showing the continuum of learning from birth through kindergarten. It is hoped that this continuum will provide some insight into the learning and development of young children, thus helping adults support the learning and excitement young children feel as they prepare to enter kindergarten.

Kansas schools are required to accept all age-eligible children (5 years by Aug. 31). Kindergarten teachers know that they will have a group of children who have a wide range of abilities and past experiences. Such diversity enriches the excitement and learning in a kindergarten classroom, but can also provide challenges to teachers, administrators and parents. The Kansas Early Learning Standards can help guide best practices that support learning and development in the early years before kindergarten and show the connection to the kindergarten year, promoting appropriate and best practices in the early primary classrooms. The KELS provide support to kindergarten teachers as they strive to meet the learning needs of the children in their classrooms.

Transitioning children and families into kindergarten successfully doesn't happen by accident. It is the result of a quality and productive community partnership and planning process. To support communities in their efforts to develop effective, satisfying and sustainable plans and practices, the Kansas Early Childhood Advisory Council has created a Kindergarten Transitions toolkit. The kit includes resources and a Memorandum Of Understanding (MOU) template that can be tailored to the needs and plans of each individual community.

Commitment to Responsive and Respectful Early Learning Environments

The Kansas Early Learning Standards (KELS) are statements describing the learning and development of young children, ages birth through 5. Children's participation in high-quality, inclusive early childhood programs and their engagement in intentional learning environments can help facilitate the reaching of these milestones. The KELS provide essential information to support and enhance a child's development and learning by promoting a whole-child approach, upholding the idea that learning and development are interrelated. Further, the Standards acknowledge, honor and embrace the diversity of children and families.

The KELS reflect a wide range of age-appropriate abilities and expectations. At the same time, the KELS create a common language from which parents and professionals can discuss a child's learning and development, providing a framework to help plan for the next stages of growth. The use of these standards will ultimately promote intentional teaching and therefore, improve child outcomes.

Referencing the KELS allows early care and education professionals to improve instructional planning and teaching through alignment of curriculum and other learning activities, providing both uniformity and flexibility. The KELS can be used for intentional instruction and should be individualized to meet the needs of all children. This, in turn, sets the stage for the development or selection of a curriculum that establishes the critical pieces of knowledge, the major concepts and additional skills that should be taught. It should be noted that the KELS should not take the place of a curriculum.

It is essential that programs identify the strengths and abilities of each child to ensure that learning opportunities are maximized and that each child is fully included in every educational experience and activity. Children with disabilities may need more individualized or intensive instruction in order to develop and learn the skills, behaviors and concepts described in the framework. They may require accommodations in the environment or in instructional strategies. Some may require adaptive materials or assistive technology. Programs need to use the framework in close collaboration with specialists identified on a child's Individual Family Service Plan (IFSP), Individualized Education Program (IEP), or 504 plan.

Supporting Children from Diverse Backgrounds

Finally, the KELS promote high-quality early childhood programming for each child in the least restrictive environment. The 2004 IDEA Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) provides the following regulatory requirement: Each school district shall be required, to the maximum extent appropriate, to educate children with disabilities with children who are not disabled, and to provide special classes, separate schooling or for the removal of children with disabilities from the regular education environment only when the nature or severity of the disability of the child is such that education in regular classes with supplementary aids and services cannot be achieved satisfactorily. K.S.A. 72-3420 (a). The process for determining the least restrictive environment (LRE) must be individualized for each child with a disability, including preschool age children, children in public schools, private schools or other care facilities. As such, the KELS reflect the framework from which the general curriculum is aligned and, therefore, provide the starting point from which individual adaptations or modifications can be created to meet the special needs of any child.

High-quality, inclusive systems that embrace difference through equitable opportunities and treatment are essential to holistically serving all children. Learning and development are rooted in culture and communities. Traditions, language, race, ethnicity, values, and beliefs are part of children's everyday experience, shaping their identity and influencing their thinking and learning. Equitable learning opportunities embrace the cultural diversity of children and families as a first step for children achieving their full learning potential. Educators and caregivers have the responsibility to respect and support each child's culture, language, and background.

Introduction

Inclusion of Children With Disabilities in Kansas Early Childhood Programs

Early childhood inclusion is the practice of educating and caring for children with and without disabilities in the same environments. It embodies values, policies and practices that lead to high-quality early childhood programs.

To advance preschool inclusion in Kansas, the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) embraces the following five principles based on the federal joint policy statement from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services/U.S. Department of Education.

- 1 Hold high expectations and intentionally promote the participation of preschoolers with disabilities in all learning and social activities.

- 2 Use evidence-based practices and supports to foster the development (cognitive, communication, physical and social-emotional) of all preschoolers.

Read the full federal joint policy from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services/U.S. Department of Education.

Guidance and federal and state requirements on LRES are located in Chapter 6, Section D, of the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook. This infographic is technical assistance and a reference tool that can be used in conjunction with or in addition to the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook.

3

Promote friendships between preschoolers with and without disabilities.

4

Promote a sense of belonging for preschoolers with disabilities and their families.

5

Promote the inclusion of children regardless of their level of disability (mild to most significant).

Media Use with Young Children

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), adults need to be mindful of the use of media technology in all early learning environments so as not to replace essential developmental experiences. Limits on media use for children can provide adequate time for play, physical activity and social time with friends and family without screen disruptions. See the AAP's website for specific recommendations on media use with young children.

<https://www.aap.org/en/patient-care/media-and-children/>

The Office of Education Technology offers the following Guiding Principles for the use of Technology with Early Learners to help guide the appropriate use of technology with young children.

<https://tech.ed.gov/earlylearning/principles/>

1. Technology - when used appropriately
- can be a tool for learning.
2. Technology should be used to increase access to learning opportunities for all children.
3. Technology may be used to strengthen relationships among parents, families, early educators and young children.
4. Technology is more effective for learning when adults and peers interact or co-view with young children.

Structure of the Document

The Kansas Early Learning Standards are structured to align with the Kansas College and Career Ready Standards (K–12) in developmentally appropriate ways, promoting continuity between early childhood years and the primary grades (K–3). Such continuity can facilitate smooth transitions and clarify communication between programs. The standards are intended to reflect widely accepted, research-based learning and development for children from birth through 5. The domain, age, subheadings and standard provides structure to the information, aiding adults in consulting the KELS when being responsive to the individual needs of young children.

The Kansas Early Learning Standards include eight domains/developmental content areas.

- Physical Development (PHD)
- Social-Emotional Development (SED)
- Communication and Literacy (CL)

Approaches to Learning

This section focuses on the different ways that children engage in learning. Standards in this section create a foundation for successful learning habits by encouraging persistence, engagement, initiative and problem-solving.

Children develop positive learning habits when familiar experiences are encouraged and supported to reinforce new and more in-depth experiences, ideas and concepts. Providing opportunities for self-directed play allows them to be motivated and practice problem-solving, social interactions, leadership and trying new experiences.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

Key Terms for Approaches to Learning

- Engagement: Being in meaningful contact or connection with.
- Initiative: Taking action without being told.
- Competence: The ability to do something successfully or efficiently.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

The Kansas Early Learning Standards document is a statewide resource and is not designed or intended to be used as part of the process of developmental screening or assessment.

Key Terms for Physical Health and Development

- Gross motor: Gross motor skills are abilities that let us do tasks that involve large muscles in our torso, legs and arms. They involve whole-body movements.
- Fine motor: Fine motor, also called small motor or hand-eye coordination, is the coordination of small muscles in movement with the eyes, hands and fingers. Fine motor skills include picking up small items, pointing to specific pictures in a book, grasping a crayon, buttoning buttons, zipping, writing and drawing, and using scissors.
- Locomotor skills: Locomotor skills enable children to move their body from one place to another. Key locomotor skills include walking, running, jumping, hopping, crawling, marching, climbing, galloping, sliding, leaping, hopping and skipping.

Physical Health and Development

Health and physical development include nutrition, safety, wellness (physical, vision, hearing, oral), and coordinated movements through active play skills of all young children. In gross-motor development, infants begin as non-mobile beings, and in a matter of months, most roll, crawl, stand and walk. Toddlers develop balance and coordination as they run and jump and climb. Preschoolers refine their movements and learn to use their large muscles to move with purpose and intent, to kick, throw, catch, climb and gallop in coordinated movements. Children's hands and fingers (fine-motor development) continue to develop as they learn to feed and dress themselves, and use tools for drawing, writing and cutting.

Movement and coordination include increasing skill and coordination of both fine (small muscle, hand-eye) and gross (large muscle) motor skills and guided by their sensory perception. A child's perceptual development refers to how children take in, interpret and act on or respond to sensory input. Perception allows children to adapt and interact with their environment through their senses.

The early years set the stage for developing lifelong behaviors, habits and values. Young children need varied opportunities for running, climbing, throwing, as well as drawing, cutting and writing. It is particularly important for activities to be unstructured and play oriented. The best opportunities are selected by the child and intentionally planned to meet the child's interests and needs, not adult directed. Children are also learning self-help and adaptive skills during their early years. When children learn to take care of themselves, they can wash their hands, brush their teeth and do other self-care tasks.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

Key Terms for Social-Emotional Development

- Reciprocal interactions: An exchange in which individuals or objects exhibit similar behavior, either at the same time or in a back-and-forth manner. For example, when a baby uses gazes, sounds, frowns and smiles to evoke responses from adults.
- Citizenship: The quality of an individual's response to membership in a community. For example, being respectful of other people and their property.
- Interpersonal skills: Skills connected with relationships between people. For example, being able to work or play cooperatively with others.

Social-Emotional Development

During early childhood, young children are beginning to develop an understanding of who they are, what they are feeling and what to expect when interacting with others. Social-emotional development refers to building positive social relationships and appropriately managing emotions to maintain these relationships. Forming emotional bonds is the foundation for all learning.

Young children can gain confidence and competence in living and learning with others and functioning independently and cooperatively when they have positive interactions with others. Social skills, self-regulation, friendship skills and social problem-solving should be seen as academic skills to be taught in early childhood classrooms. These skills are critical for school success, as the classroom is a social environment.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

Key Terms for Communication and Literacy

- Text: The main body of a written work. For example, books, poetry, fables and rhymes.
- Blends: Combining a group of consonants together to form sounds. For example, the “tr” in trap or “spl” in splash are both blends.
- Segmenting: Identifying the individual sounds (phonemes) in a word. For example, a child may break the word “sand” into its component sounds – /sss/, /aaa/, /nnn/, and /d/.
- Phoneme: Smallest unit of speech distinguishing one word (or word element) from another, as the element p in “tap,” which separates that word from “tab,” “tag” and “tan.”

Communication and Literacy Skill Development

Through exposure to quality literature, children develop early literacy and communication skills in concepts of print, letter knowledge, narrative skills and oral language. Literacy is the foundation of reading and writing. It is a combination of word recognition and language comprehension, far more than printed words alone. As young children engage in language-rich environments where a variety of materials, activities and interactions are promoted, their ability to make the mental connection between sounds and letters begins to emerge. Children discover written words are another way to share their thoughts, needs and ideas.

Dual language learners (DLLs) is a term used to emphasize the fact that young children are developing in their primary language(s) while also learning one or more additional languages, including Indigenous languages. Bilingual deaf education programs that use American Sign Language (ASL) and English consider their deaf and hard-of-hearing students to be English language learners whose first language is ASL. Supporting bilingualism from early ages can have wide ranging benefits, from cognitive and social advantages early in life to long-term opportunities in the workplace later in life. As such, it is important for early childhood programs to create an environment that supports children and families from all cultures and who speak different languages.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

The Kansas Early Learning Standards document is a statewide resource and is not designed or intended to be used as part of the process of developmental screening or assessment.

Mathematical Knowledge

Early in life, young children spontaneously explore and naturally use mathematics in their environments. Children begin to learn essential math skills through play. They compare, notice similarities and differences, and group toys and materials. This ability to organize information into categories, quantify data and solve problems helps children learn about time, space and numbers. Over time, they develop the vocabulary and skills to:

- Describe relationships between objects in the environment.
- Describe patterns.
- Express order and position.
- Measure.

Mathematics helps children make sense of the physical and social worlds around them, and they intuitively incorporate math as they make comments such as:

- “He has more than I do!”
- “That won’t fit in there. It’s too big.”
- “I can’t move it. It’s too heavy.”

By taking advantage of moments when children are naturally using math and by carefully planning a variety of experiences with mathematical ideas in mind, adults can cultivate and extend a child’s natural interest in math. Positive experiences where children use mathematics to solve problems help them to develop curiosity, imagination, flexibility, inventiveness and persistence, which all combine to contribute to their future success in and out of school.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

Science

Children are natural scientists. They possess an intrinsic desire to explore the world around them, and science feeds the curiosity and engagement of children. Through scientific explorations, children learn to record and document their observations of changes, identify patterns, and discuss relationships to help build understanding. Science engages children's senses and encourages them to ask questions, investigate and develop new ways of thinking. By participating in varied and consistent opportunities to observe, manipulate, test, reflect and respond to open-ended questions, children have an opportunity to develop knowledge about their environment and learn important scientific skills to foster the ongoing development of problem-solving abilities. Adults can help children grow into curious and confident scientists through intentional teaching.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

Social Studies

Social studies includes learning about the world in which one lives and how one's family and community fit into a larger concept of the state and the country. For young children, social studies begins within the context of their own family, learning about other families, larger groups and communities. As children work together for the good of the community and themselves, they discover the impact of culture and how to live as engaged citizens.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.

Creative Arts

Creativity through the arts can and should be woven throughout all areas of a young child's learning opportunities. As children develop, they experience their world through play, learning to respond thoughtfully and sensitively to their environment. For children, creative play allows them to interpret their real and imagined worlds within a safe environment; to express curiosity, feelings and understandings; and to discover and appreciate aspects of culture and heritage. Play through the Creative Arts provides children with the opportunities for high-level learning that supports and enhances learning across all domains.

The arts are open-ended, imaginative activities that encourage the exploration of their environment. By focusing on the creative process in artistic play rather than the product, children can build confidence, strengthen independence and develop problem-solving skills.

Equity and inclusion in early childhood assures access, participation and supports for all children of all abilities and cultural backgrounds. To foster development, a sense of belonging, friendships and respectful relationships for all children, adults must provide a diverse range of learning opportunities, activities, settings and environments.
